

SCHOOL LIFE

22-nd November – Our school was visited by Mr. Surendra Rai, representative of Mahatma Gandhi Handicapped Center- New Delhi, India. In an extremely fascinating, impressive and accessible way he presented his book 'Indian Paper Art' and showed making Indian paper decorations for holidays. Flowers, garlands and other pieces appeared to children's eyes gleaming. To present himself he told a few words about his life and explained the reasons for visiting Bulgaria and in particular-Plovdiv. Himself Master of fine arts and a teacher to students from first to seventh grade, he sees art that demonstrates a means to deliver joy and make people happy. Guided by the belief that good holidays need a nice decoration, Mr. Rai said that decorating for Christmas or a birthday party can be done very quickly, in about ten minutes. Explaining that his art is not like origami - the Japanese art, which is very difficult, he showed photographs of the visited schools and countries- Germany, France, Italy, Belgium, Greece, Turkey. On behalf of all, Vesela Ruseva- primary teacher and head to the club "Media School" Aleko ", wished him success.

SCHOOL FOR PARENTS

SOURCES OF CHILD AGGRESSION

Unfortunately aggression can often be seen among children nowadays. It can be caused by any inducement, to be trained or to be the protective response. Aggressive behaviour can be just a signal of problems in child`s life.

Family atmosphere can largely learn children aggressive behaviour. If a child is witnessed rivalries and conflicts in parents` communicating, it is likely to adopt a way of such communication straightway.

Another typical situation that can cause aggression in children is indifference or disparagement of them. This situation can cause signs of obstinacy, whims and brutality as the only motive for this is to attract the attention of parents.

TV programs can also be a source from which children, especially boys, learn about different forms of aggression. These models of aggression are simulated in a suitable situation.

Whether manifested aggression is generated by the atmosphere of aggression within the family or the indifference and neglect or imitation of television characters, the presence of aggression in adolescent behaviour involved in the development of their personality. The fact that during the years of intensive formation of their personality, teenagers are organized in the educational environment of the family and the school itself requires cooperation in attempting to influence the growing problem of childhood aggression.
